In the interest of avoiding actual or potential conflicts of interest, complaints of favoritism, possible sexual harassment, and potential dissension caused by romantic relationships between employees, and especially between Supervisors and other employees, EMTA has the following policy provisions:
 - Employees are prohibited from engaging in physical contact that would in anyway be deemed inappropriate by a reasonable person while anywhere on company premises, whether during work hours or not.
 - Employee off-duty conduct is generally deemed private, as long as it is not detrimental to employee performance or the workplace environment.
 - Exceptions to this are romantic or close personal relationships between Supervisors and subordinates, which may constitute a conflict of interest. If a romantic or close relationship between a Supervisor and any employee within the Supervisor's area of responsibility should develop, the Supervisor must promptly bring the matter to the attention of the Human Resources Department. EMTA reserves the right to take any appropriate action it deems necessary to resolve any conflicts of this nature, including reassignment.
